

The Australian Subsea Business Awards took place on Friday 16th of October, it was truly an evening of celebration of the best in subsea and ocean based industry.

The evening kicked off with a performance from skilled musician Chris Murphy, free flowing beverages, and delicious canapés. With Robyn Collard-Rioli performing a touching welcome to country, reminding all of the importance of the land we stood on, and the importance of elders past, present, and future as we continue to celebrate the success and growth in our industry. As the evening progressed guests were treated to the comedic delights of our master of ceremonies Russell Woolf, before kicking off the awards!

This years nominations consisted of companies and individuals that have not only shaped our industry, but who continue to help it innovate, develop, and grow. With a touching speech from Colin McIvor, remembering the late Craig Black who helped to shape innovation within the subsea industry, the awards were fully underway. The winners of this years awards include;

- Geo Oceans - Winners of the Craig Black Award for Innovation & Technology
- Wood & NERA - Winners of the Industry Collaboration Award
- Shelby Bailey - Winner of the Emerging Talent Award
- Atlas Professionals - Winners of the Diversity & Inclusion Award
- IAS - Winners of the Australian Subsea Exporter of the Year Award
- Geo Oceans - Winners of the Company of the Year Award

With congratulations to all those nominated and of course to all our awards winners flooding in from the crowd, the evening continued on with networking and more music from the talented Chris. The final formality of the evening came in the form of our fabulous door prize sponsored by Pullmans Bunker Bay, which Russel eagerly presented to the lucky Todd Barrett.

The evening of course would not have been possible without the help of the awards sponsors, networking sponsor, and staff who brought the event together on the evening.